The safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. Whether the catarrh is located in the nose throat, bronchial tubes, or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and traches from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, oughing, bawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer. Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration, in ome cases to such an extent as to destroy the to be patched up so that you will get nose entirely and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. ### INFLUENCE OF MUSIC.

Results of Experiments Made Upon

The pleasing legend of Orpheus and the wild beasts has lately been put to the proof in Europe-in a series of tests to determine whether music hath charms to soothe the savage breast. Not long since a concert was given at the poultry show at Posen. The fowls listened intently, and the only one which did not seem pleased was an old noisy disapproval. Herr Baler, the violinist, then made a series of experiments in the German Zoological Gardens with interesting results. A puma was found to be peculiarly susceptible. As soon as the playng began he stretched himself and ilsened intently, giving every evidence of ensuous pleasure. This continued as longi as the music was soft and low, but when down and went to sleep. The lion cubs seemed to show a disposition to dance when the music was animated, but the older members of the family were evidently better pleased with allegro measures. Hyenas were badly frightened. The monkeys showed much curiosity, but only one of them displayed evidence of great pleasure. Prairie wolves at first manifested great cu riosity, but, having satisfied themselves as to where the sounds came from, they arranged themselves in a semi-circle and listened attentively. When the music stopped they pawed the player and seemed to solicit a favor of an encore. The tests are to be continued, with a view to determining if musical perception is a trait in all animals if they get the kind of music which suits them, or only a nervous manifestation in recognition of the unusual and incomprehensible.

At the Live Stock Show. From the Chicago Tribune. "You needn't get stuck on yourself just because all these people are looking at you," said the fag pig to the razorback. You're here simply as a curiosity." "That's all right," returned the razor-back. "After the show's over I'll go back home and fatten up and you'll stay here and be cut up."

THE SATURDAY STAR A NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

AN INDUSTRY IN THIS CITY NOT TO BE OVERLOOKED.

Thousands of Sacks Made and Repaired Each Year-A Big Lock

"There is one industry in Washington which is usually overlooked when the manufacturing industries of the capital are enumerated," said a postal official to a Star man this morning; "and that is what is officially known as the mail bag and repair shop of the Post Office Department, situated on C street near 6th. "While it is true that the operatives in the shop repair the mail bags sent in for that purpose, they also manufacture pouches, locks, keys and a dozen other

"A manufacturing establishment which disburses a goodly share of $275,000 annually in Washington is not to be considered of slight industrial importance. Employment is given to 250 men and women, at wages varying with the skill of the opera-tive, among whom are many mechanics and machinists, kept at steady employment dur-ing the best part of the year. About $120;-000 is annually disbursed for labor alone.

articles used in the mail equipment of the "Last year the mail bag operatives at the shop manufactured over 14,000 mail pouches and repaired 1,440,000. The lock makers turned out 20,500 locks, of what is known as the Eagle lock, of familiar sight on the mail pouches, as the public sees them tossed in and out of the postal cars, and repaired 87,000. In addition they made letter box locks and repaired and made many thousands of registered mail locks, special locks, keys, mail pouch faskey chains and scores of other useteners. ful articles appurtenant to pouches and Farewell to the Leather Pouch.

"In fact, when locks and pouches need repairing they are all sent to Washington. Even the post office letter scales come here your money's worth of postage, severat thousand annually finding their way to the big building on C street.

The government purchases about 120;-000 mail pouches annually in addition to those made here, and they are of canvas. The day of the old heavy leather mail sack, with its patched and iron-riveted sides, has passed forever, though such of those still in use which are in serviceable condition are retained to die natural deaths from wear and tear. All of the new bags are made of a light, but very strong, canvas, looped and fastened at the top with a self-acting snap and strap, which is easily locked, the bag being closed at the top in a fashlon not unlike the family clothes bag containing the weekly wash. This mode of fastening is simple and vastly superior to the old style of strap and staples, and they make a lighter, neater and more easily handled pouch than the one former use.
"Inasmuch as the government pays transportation on its mail sacks at so much per pound, empty or filled, the lighter the sack the less the charge. The aggregate lessening in weight of all mail pouches used is thousands of pounds, a consequent saving to the government and that much out to the railroad companies,

A Big Lock Factory. "In addition to the above appropriation there is an additional appropriation of $45,-000 for the manufacture and repair of locks, four-fifths of which amount is disbursed in Washington for labor.

"On C street in this city the lock and key for every letter box in the United States are made, as well as all other mail locks except the rotary of registered lock, and that will soon be made here. Every letter box lock and key and every registered lock and key has as history, is looked after carefully, and can be located and traced at any time. To such individual record, however, is kept of the mail pouch ocks and keys, as registered mail locks.

"If Congress would give the department an appropriation for a suitable building for the manufacture of mail equipment, Washington: would aboute another thriving industry which wouldsemploy from 300 to 400 hands, depending upon the requirements of the service. The department could easily and advantageously make all of its own mail pouches instead of only 14,000 annually, as at present, if it had a building with adequate space, as cutting the canvas and putting the pieces into bags require plenty of elbow room.

"We are now making at the C street shop the best street letter box lock as yet turned out. A number have been in use in Boston for over a year and none have come back to the shop for repairs, while of the other locks we fix thousands every year. Our own hands can make as good ma'l pouches as any contractor, and Washington would profit to the extent of disbursing substan-tial yearly sums in channels of labor and trade where it would do the most good. The manufacture of mall pouches is now let on a four years' contract, but with an adequate force and a suitable building we would rather make them ourselves in C street shop hundreds of tents of all sizes for our soldiers, and we did the work well. While we may never again be called upon to meet a similar emergency, yet with a large airy building in Washington occupied by a trained force of canvas makers already engaged upon other branches of government work, our capacity for turning out tents would be limited only by the force we could put to work. Additional em-ployment would be given to residents of the capital, and the government could get its supplies of this kind with the least delay."

SYMPTOMS THAT SHOULD WARN MEN OF COMING SICKNESS.

Winter Colds and Blue Hands-Lines on the Gams.

Nature scarce ever strikes without warning. In so far as disease is concerned it gives clear signs of what is impending day, weeks, months, and even years before the attack. If people looked for these signs and took warning from them they would escape much serious illness and live many years longer than they do. It is indeed re markable how careless we are in this respect. A man who will anxiously scan the sky for signs of coming rain lest his tophat may get spoiled will never dream of examining his eyes, nose or finger nails for their worst night. The laws that govern signs of coming liness. The sneeze, for instance, is very significant. It is always a sign that something is injuring the air passages, anywhere from only a case of snuff or pepper, of course the sheeze is of no consequence. But often it is an indication of congestion. There is inflammation somewhere, with too much blood, and the object of the sneeze is to give relief by getting rid of some of the fluid. This sneeze is a warning that every prudent person should attend to. It is at least the forerunner of a cold. But it may indicate an approaching attack of bronchitis or pneumonia. When there much sneezing, accompanied by some thing like a small shower of rain, the victim will do well to take a warm footbath, go to bed, and adopt the other usual reme dies to cure a cold.

Winter Colds. The winter cold itself is a grave warning. When it recurs two or three times every winter, it is sure to be followed, in the end, by chronic bronchitis. Once this comes on it is practically incurable.

Men are started on their lives much as a shell from a cannon-with a certain fixed loes not carry them off, they will die some time of what we call old age-in other words, when the energy with which they started is spent. Some have energy enough to carry them over the full century; others have only sufficient to keep them going for ninety, eighty, seventy, sixty or fewer years. Now, early baldness is a sure sign, with some exceptions, that the energy is likely to fail sooner than in the average man. But all kinds of baldness have not hair arises from scalp disease, caused prob by microbes. The warning baldness is that kind which commences about the temples and on the crown of the head, and gradually eats its way over the scalp, until nly a circular fringe of hair is left. Blue nails, or blue hands, betoken weal or obstructed circulation. They are a warning against overexertion of any kind The obstruction may occur from disorder of several organs in the body. But most commonly the blueness indicates that the heart is not up to the mark. Yawning is a somewhat similar warning.

It is a sign that the steam has run down and that it is time to go to bed, or perhaps to go into the open air. When you si in a close room the lungs do not receive sufficient of the vital gas, oxygen. The yawn is then a desperate effort of the lungs to properly aerate the blood, and it warns you to open the windows or to leave the room. When you are out of bed too long or when you have done an unusually hard day's work, the waste products of your body are present in excessive quantity. Then the yawn is a warning to you to lie most common one is this: A little artery in the brain wears out and lets some blood escape, which clots, presses on the brain, and paralyzes whatever part of the body is governed by the piece of brain pressed upon. Now this artery wears out only in common with other arteries of the body. In some people they all become what is called atheromatous, or hard and brittle. At the same time they become tortuous, or twisted. We can see these hard and tortuous arteries on the temples, and then we know it is not safe to do anything which will congest the brain, lest the one little artery there, which is especially liable to give way, shall let the blood escape. Likewise warning is often given by the tiny arteries of the eye. They break and let out little traces of blood, which can easily be seen. But a cold or sleepless night may do the same. When these signs occur, and they occur months and years before the stroke, do not get excited or angry, no matter how great the provocation, do not rush to catch an omnibus, or in any way overexert yourself and do not in any way overexert yourself, and do not dine too heartly. By taking the warnings given by nature you will insure yourself against this pleasantest way of leaving the world, and be sure of dying of cholera, or smallpox, or some other respectable disavenue, as published in The Star, is still night and day, and consult a doctor,

The Mysterious Laws That Govern Theaters and Audiences. From the Playgoer. The playgoer who wishes to get a seat in his selected theater for the time being should select a Friday night. It is difficult to say why he should choose Friday, except that, those interested in theaters have, from time immemorial, regarded Friday as theaters and audiences are sometimes very mysterious. A play, for example, is prodheed, which every one speaks well of, if regret that they had not given it a more solid welcome. There is another problem - difficult to olve. A play is produced which at once achieves instantaneous popularity. Every one who has seen it advises others to see it, with the result that every one in town and many in the country wish to see it-are eager to see it. The holding capacity of the lucky house represents 1,500 people. The people consumed with a desire to see this play number, perhaps, more than half a million. What is to prevent this half million presenting themselves on a single night and creating gigantic difficulty, or a street riot? The mysterious law of averages, which the greatest mathematician cannot explain, saves the manager. About as many people as the house can contain present themselves every night - rarely more, if never less, a fact almost as wonderful as the instinctive food supply of

There is one peculiarity of playgoing which I always regard as a disease—a mental aberration, leading, of course, to physical injury and suffering. It is that fanatical "star worship" which leads men, wo-men and children to take camp stools to the entrances of a popular theater on the eve of a "first night," and besiege the doors many hours before the opening. Such an exhibition of folly-such an open violation of the laws of decency and commor sense—can, of course, no more be interfered with, as long as the rights of passing and pitying pedestrians are concerned than the self-mutilations of Hindoo fakirs at their religious ceremonies. Honest and sensible playgoers will do well to note and avoid these pit and gallery door excesses, which only bring the working drama into contempt by associating it with a special form of idiocy. Whatever rules and regulations are laid down by theatrical managers in the conduct of their business should be respected by the trained playgoer. If it is a fee house" (a system quite within the rights of the manager) the playgoer should enter and depart without remark. If he objects to fees, he can easily avoid that particular theater and reserve his protests for print or conversation. If it is a "no fee house," a system that causes a large outlay for his comfort and convenience, he should aid the manager in maintaining this having gone in for the higher education, set up as a staymaker. Now the two have joined forces, and are amassing a fortune. They have combined their different professignal capacities in the following manner: Customers calling find themselves first ushered into the woman doctor's consulting room. There they undergo a regular medical examination, they have to answer the usual practitioner's questions, their pulse is felt, their lungs sounded, their heart listened to, and so on. The doctor then draws up a diagnosis, in other words, an exact description of the kind of corset which the build or state of health of each customer requires that she shall wear. It is even said that the phy-sician carries conscientiousness so far as to forbid in some cases the wearing of stays at all. When this dread veto is pronounced, customers are bowed out with many expressions of regret and sympathy. But in the majority of cases they are "passed" by the doctor, and are then ushered into the room where the sister pre-sides over her branch of the business, and takes the measurements in strict accordance with the medical instructions. The partnership of staymaker and physician has proved so successful that, although the charges made are on the highest scale of the corset trade, consulting room and fitting shop are always crowded.

TIME CONSUMED IN HOLIDAYS. Special Dates Which Are Honored in

> From the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "In the aggregate the people of the United States spend about one month every year in the observance of legal holidays, said an observant citizen, "and yet we are constantly talking about how we rush things in this age. Of course these observances are not uniform, for many of them are peculiar to certain states, and are made legal holidays by special legislative enactment, and are commemorative o some event in the state's history.

"Here in Louisiana, for instance, we have January 8, which is the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. There is January which is set aside as a legal holiday in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia in honor of the birth-day of Robert E. Lee. In Connecticut, Illinois, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Washington, February 12 is observed in honor of Lincoln's birthday. "It is a curious fact that there are no statutory holidays in either Mississippi or Nevada, but by common consent the usual nolidays are observed. So, after all, have somewhat of sentiment left in this country and do not hurry so much as we think at times, and it is a good thing, too, for we have time to reflect on these days of rest and we profit by it in many ways."

Shocking Conditions Which the Sul-ten is Partially Relieving. rom the London Times.

Mr. Henry Gurney sends us some exracts from a letter recently received from Mr. Alan Lennox, a missionary residing in Marakesh, of which we publish the following: After describing the condition of the well-to-do prisoners in the kasbah, the writer continues: "But the sad and heartrending sight is the two dungeons, each containing 100 of the porest prisoners huddled together, many almost destitute of clothing. These dungeons are dug out of the solid earth, the roofs, walls and floor being of damp clay, and two small holes in the roof admit light and ventilation. The condition of these wretches is beyond description; crammed together with scarce-ly enough space to lie down, amid stench, filth and disease, they eke out their miser-able existence without hope of release ex-cept in death. With hunger ever gnawing at their hearts, what struggles must take place over the little eatable bread they oc-casionally receive!

"True, the government supplies them with what is called bread, but of such coarse and abominable quality as to cause excruciating pain in their weak digestive organs, so that in many cases it is impossible for them to eat it. As for clothing being supplied, I never heard of it. So possible for them to eat it. As for clothing being supplied, I never heard of it. So strong is the fatalism of those people that instead of grumbling and replaing they will accept it all quietly and say it is decreed of God. The perfect stillness of the night is sometimes suddenly broken by the united wall from those hundreds: 'Allah yemsar Mulai Abdul Aziz'—May God help, or give victory to Mulai Abdul Aziz'—yet it is for supposed opposition to this that the majority of them are there. As for the sultan, I know him well, and respect him as a very amiable and courteous gentleman, fond of Europeans, and anxious to reform his country. In his present state of mind, if he were wisely guided by those around him and honestly assisted by the European powers who are interested in the reform and opening up of the country, he would do a great deal. We must, at the same time, not underestimate his difficulties, for his native officials find the present state of misgovernment more remunerative." Mr. Gurney, in his own letter, adds: "I may his native officials find the present state of misgovernment more remunerative." Mr. Gurney, in his own letter, adds: "I may mention that I heard from Tangier, from an official source, under date of October 27, that the Sultan of Morocco has already released many prisoners and that at Rabat all the political prisoners incarcerated there have been set free."
